Northumberland County.
[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]
The venerable little town of Heatsville, with the impress of old age so visible, is the county seat of Northumberland county and has a population of about six hundred. In the immediate vicinity or on its suburbs a number of beautiful residences have been erected within a few years past, and I found everybody social and pleasant. The court house building is a good one and Judge Ewell, a most excellent gentleman, intelligent, popular and efficient in the discharge of his duties. The Commonwealth's attorney, Lloyd T. Smith, is well known to many persons in your section, being a native of Loudoun county. He is greatly esteemed for his ability as a lawyer as well as extraordinary qualities of mind and heart. This county, containing about eight thousand inhabitants, is at the mouth of the Potomac.
Undulations, most beautiful, abound, adorned with handsome residences, highly improved little farms, everything bright and attractive. I found my great surprise, near Lodge Landing, one of the most perfect little machine shops that can be found in the State. It is built near the extreme end of a peninsula extending into Yeocomick creek and containing only four acres. Here is manufactured all the marking and canceling steel stamps used by the Postoffice Department and supplied to every postoffice in the United States. This is doubtless news to many.
The factory is owned and worked by Col.
Benj. Chambers, who for twenty years has had the contract for supplying the department with every steel stamp used throughout the country. He employs fourteen expert workmen, and it is wonderful to see the rapidity with which the work goes on, every man having his particular part to finish up. The steel used is made by the Bessemer process; the names of the postoffices, &c., are cut upon the circular stamps with chisels, by hand, and then finished thoroughly and hardened. Everything pertaining to the office is manufactured on the premises, and shipments are made twice a week to the department in Washington. The factory was removed from that city to its present location about four years ago, by the contractor, Col. Chambers is the present chairman of the democratic committee of the county.
Some few years ago only two houses could be seen here. Now I suppose at least a hundred could be counted; and all this prosperity is owing to the enterprise and liberal views of Mr. M. T. Dawson, who bought this property years ago. He sold off his lots at a low valuation, and hence the great increase of population. Only a short distance from there was located the old Masonic Lodge, built in Colonial days and destroyed by fire in 1813. The records are still preserved in this vicinity, and the name of Geo. Washington appears upon them. Fairfield is another of the many prosperous sections. Here are located numerous fish factories, where thousands of tons of the finny tribe are manufactured into fish guano and shipped to different sections of the country. A few years ago some large fortunes were made at this business, but, like every other enterprise, it was soon overdone. It was during those prosperous times that many handsome dwellings were erected, with all the surroundings in tip top order and farming interests well in hand, together with stores, large, numerous and successful.
In the interior of the county the farms are large and well cultivated, and the grand old mansions imposing. The telephone company is now preparing to put up their lines all through this section, and it is hoped that they will be in successful operation by the close of the year. There is not a railroad through this populous and productive country, but I do not think that the day is far distant when the iron horse will rush through these fertile fields, for the people feel keenly the great injustice being done them. For instance, local points or landings are compelled to pay 25 to 30 cents per barrel, freight charges, whilst the same is transported to or from either of the terminal points, Baltimore or Fredericksburg, at half price. For several weeks in the winter navigation is closed by the ice, and then the people are cut off entirely. The time must come when this delightful country will be opened up by railroads. Then population will flow in, and every section be rapidly developed. Still I find some people throughout here opposed to a railroad, and for reasons too absurd to mention.
Hunting is excellent about here. A few miles from this place several fine bucks have been killed in the past week. Foxes and small game also abound.
The memory of the Confederate soldiers of this county who were killed will be made known to future generations by the beautiful marble monument, near the Court House, erected by the ladies of the county.
It is an imposing shaft about 25 feet high, crowned with a female figure. Upon this monument the names of one hundred and fifty six Confederate soldiers are engraved, "who gave their lives for their native State and the South."
